AMUNEMENTS.

The Princess Toto," Glibers and Clay's "The Princess Toto," words by Mr. Gilbert and music by Mr. Frederick Clay, brought out last evening at the Stand-Theatre. It is a little difficult to trew whether to speak of it as an opera frew whether to speak of it as an opera or is a play. It is called an opera, but, in fact, the dialogue is so extremely droll, the situations so eccentric and grotesque, and the play, as a play, so very good, that public play, as the public specific is keenly fixed upon the drama to the detriment of the music. In justice o Mr. Ciay, Mr. Gilbert should not have been posed to be to write nonsense, to which nobody

If, in certain portions of the music, the prepondarance of basses and barlones made the tone sometimes a little heavy and sombre, it may be said that this is a difficulty laberent in the composition of most mortal shoruses, in a world where good tenors and seconds are not to be plucked on every bush. Mr. Graff gave his solo portions of the score with the aweetest of tenors and very delicate and judicious method. Mr. Remmerz was in general admirable in the concerted music, but less happy in the quaint fugued and ornamented style of the solo air from Handel's "Enzlo," a bit of construction somewhat too flowery and slaborate for his ponderous depth of voice. It is to be regretted that the effect of so fine an organ should frequently, as last evening, be marred-by notably deficient intonation.

Miss Book played her Liszt-Weber Polonaise and selections from Tausig and Chopin with reat taste and delicate finish. If with slight thow of breadth and energy, and Miss Lettia Fritch sang acceptably airs from Mozart and Bolimi.

Fritch sang acceptably airs from Mozart and Bellini.

The sensation of the evening was decidedly the list number, a series of six "Old Netherlandish Popular Songs"—music and words of the seventeenth century, but arranged and translated by Kremser and Weyl. In these interesting compositions the bread simplicity of ruythm, clear melodic construction and naive but carnest sentiment made them musically both curious and pleasing in a high degree, while the text—love songs, prayers, battle thoruses, and the like—gave a vivid realization of life in the Low Countries which suggests the brilliant colors of Prescott and Motley.

INHERITING A LAWSUIT.

The Queer Legacy that Fell to the Heli's of the Late Isaac W. Potter.

A contest is going on in the Surrogate's Court over the will of the late Isaac W. Potter, who fied in February last. At his death Mr Potter was involved in a protracted litigation over property of which he believed himself defrauded, and by his will he directed that no part of his estate should go to his heirs until the suit at law is settled. Up to almost the last moment of his life, prison reform was the ruling subject in Dr. Wines's mind. Dr. Wines was born in Hanover, N. J., in 1806. He was graduated from Middlebury College in 1827, and became principal of a school in St. Albans, Vt. He was soon invited to assume a more important trust in Alexandria, Va. In 1829 he was appointed an instructor in the United States navy, and was assigned to the ship Constellation, then in the Mediterranean. In 1833, having resigned his position in the navy, he took charge of Edge Hill School, Frinceton, N. J., and five years later, of the Central High School of Philadelphia. In 1844, he established a private school in Burlington, N. J., and maintained its excellent reputation until 1848, when the Congregational Board of Rhode Island licensed him to preach, and he labored in several cities successfully as a preacher. In 1853 he took up again the task of teaching, being appointed Professor of Ancient Languages in the University of Pennsylvania. In 1859 he assumed control of the University as a preacher. SERGEANT FANNING'S ASSAILANTS.

Murphy and Connors Identified as Partici-The two men who, in resisting arrest, shot Sergeant Fanning, on Friday night, were taken to the Police Central Office shortly after noon yesterday, and all the detectives in the city were summoned to identify them. The man who did the shooting, and who called himself James Murphy, was at once identified as Lewis Gillespie, a well known reprobate, while Connors, although not in the Rogues' Gallery, was recognized by many policemen as a hardened charcharacter of a wagon and clothes line thief, his operations being confined to unguarded vehicles and laundries. He finally joined the "Border Gang," but his offences against the law only involved short terms of imprisonment on Blackwell's Island. To his readiness to draw his revolver on a policeman he owed his escape about a year ago from a bail in Walhalis Hall in Orchard street, but this time he only threatened to shoot Policeman harris, in order to get a free passage, which was given him. About a year ago, when trying to rob a man who had $1,300, in Owen Geoghegan's saloon, 105 Bowery, he was shot by Geoghegan's saloon, 105 Bowery, he was shot by Geoghegan's saloon, 105 Bowery, he was shot by Geoghegan's saloon after he had recovered he was sent to Blackwell's Island for a peculiarly atroctous assault and battery. Last July, when in a beat with a man named O'Brien, in charge of Keeper Kelly, he was rescued by a gang of his friends, who approached in another boat, overturned the Island craft, and made off with its criminal cargo, loaving the keeper struggling in the water. Gillespie was not seen by the police until he shot Sergeant Fanning on Friday night.

Connors, who is known as "Liverpool Jack," has a less exciting history. About eight years ago he was connected with a gang of masked burgiars in New Jersey, and got a five years' sentence for his share of their misdeeds. Since his release he has received several short terms on Blackwell's Island for crimes in this city. character of a wagon and clothes line thief, his

The two men arrested on Friday the schooner. The two men arrested on Friday night persisted in their story that the schooner's loss was attributable to the negligence of Capt. Several of her crew belonged here, and their families are greatly concerned as to the fate of their relatives. There is no doubt that the schooner was intentionally wrecked, and the fact that the three men are the sole survivors rounts to the theory that they survivors points to the theory that they are the guilty parties.

DOG TRIALS ON ROBIN ISLAND.

Brooklyn Dogs in the Brace Stakes-End of the Enstern Field Trials.

NEW SUFFOLK, L. I., Dec. 13.-Fifteen sportsmen and four reporters faced the cold northeast wind on the deck of the Little Emily this morning to follow the hunting dogs in the final runs for the brace stakes, which were to wind up the first meeting of the Eastern Field Trials Club, The previous three days go-asyou-please, from daylight to dusk, over the fields and hills, and through the brush and brambles of Robin Island had thinned the attendance two-thirds. Nevertheless they had brambles of Robin Island had thinned the attendance two-thirds. Nevertheless they had all rightly declared that it was one of the prettiest spots for hunting to be found in this country.

The first brace sent into the field was Dr. Spier's Maida and Sid. They gave a fair display of fleiding. Maida nosed and picked up a dead bird to order. She then backed Sid while pointing a bevy, dropping finely to shot, while Sid worked unsteadily. St. Elmo would have worked unsteadily. St. Elmo would have worked better with Maida, as they resemble each other in form, style, and color.

Dr. Jarvis's red Irish setters Raleigh and Lorna were the next brace sent out. They are brother and sister, by Champion Elcho ex-Rosa. They are two weeks over eighteen months old, which shut them out of the puppy stakes. They fielded and worked together almost as one dog, which, although a fine exhibition of twin work, the judges considered was in too close order for a brace performance. Both nosed superbly while runing down the wind, Lorna backing Raleigh's pointing close as a shadow. Lorna's style, especially, was almost perfect.

Dr. Aten's Brocklyn dogs Glen and Ned were then sent into the field a second time, in the brace stakes, to settle a doubtful point for the satisfaction of the judges. Glen gave a pretty exhibition of pointing in a clump of briarwood, at the bottom of a basin. The birds ran, and Ned moved on, against loud remonstrances from his handler. After poor work in the brush, the dogs were called off for the last time.

A consultation of the judges. Measrs. Billings, Anderson and Coster, then took place. The strances from his handler. After poor work in the brush, the dogs were called off for the last time.

A consultation of the judges, Messrs. Billings, Anderson, and Coster, then took place. The points made by the several braces were posted up, and the prizes awarded. There were only two, $100 to first and $50 to second brace.

The judges decided that Dr. Aten's Gien and Ned were entitled to first prize, and Mr. Tallman's Grouse Dale and Smut to second.

The first decision caused much astonishment and a great deal of discussion, as it was generally supposed that the little red Irish pair would take the prize.

This was the first real cause of discontent during the trials. It was the general opinion that the judges had acted conscientiously in all their decisions. Certainly they had attended faithfully to their arduous and difficult task.

The club has now been placed on a solid foundation, several influential gentlemen joining while the trials were in progress.

During the past week Gen. gentleman who is negotiating for the roads is Gen. Burt of Boston. During the past week Gen. Burt has visited Syracuse and held several protracted consultations with James J. Beiden. These conferences related to the purchase or control of the Syracuse and Chenango Valley road, which is mainly owned by Mr. Beiden, and to the finishing of the road from Syracuse to Phoenix, thus making a more direct line of the Midland road from Earlylle to Phoenix. The appearance of Gen. Burt in Syracuse and his negotiations give good grounds for the belief that Boston capitalists are largely interested in the Oswego Midland road, and that the real object in view is to secure a direct line from Boston to Oswego instead of from New York. Those who are in a position to know assert that Gen. Burt offered $550,000 for the Chenango Valley road, and that the price asked was $600,000. It is also stated that the Presidency of a new company to be formed and representing a large amount of capital was informally tendered to Mr. Belden.

The directors of the Syracuse and Phoenix road, of which Judge George F. Comstock is President, held a meeting to-day in this city and appointed a committee to negotiate for the sale of the road to the parties interested. It is quite important for the Oswego Midland management to secure this road, as the distance from Syracuse to Oswego is shortened ten miles by this route. Those who claim to know where-of they speak, assert that Mr. Tilden has nothing whatever to do with the scheme, but that Boston capitalists are the sole parties interested.

LOUISIANA STATE LOTTERY. A Card from Gens. Beauregard and Early.

An order recently issued by the Postmaster-General characterizing, as we are informed by the newspapers, all lotteries, and among them the Louisiana State Lottery, as fraudulent, requires some notice at our hands. We have not seen the order or a copy of it, and understand that the agents and officials of the company in this city (New Orleans) have been refused such copy; but we are informed that the order requires all letters addressed to any of the agents of the Louisiana State Lottery, as such, to be stamped "fraudulent," and returned to the writers when known, or sent to the Dead Letter Office when the writers are not known.

As it is well known that we superintend the drawings of the larger schemes of the Louisiana State Lottery, which take place semi-an-nually, we deem it an act of imperative duty to ourselves, as well as of justice to the company with which we are thus connected, to publish in this or any other country, have such effectual precautions been taken to secure fairness in the drawings as well as in the publication of the result, as have been taken in the case of the Louisiana State Lottery. We have likewise had reason to know that in all of its other operations the company has conducted its business fairly and honestly, and compiled with all of its obligations. The compensation we receive for our services is a fixed one, and we have no interest in the profits of the company. We have lived in vain if the public to which we are known cannot accept our assurance that we would have no connection with operations of any kind that we had reason to suspect were fraudulent.

If the Postmaster-General uses his official position to make the charge of fraud in regard to a corporation with which we are connected, he must not be surprised if we denounce his charge as utterly false and without any foundation in fact.

In conclusion we must state that the Louisians State Lottery is operating under a charter which was granted by the Logislature of Louisian, has been adjudged by a Circuit Court of the United States to constitute a binding and irrepealable contract, and as such is recognized in the Constitution recently adopted in the State over $400,000 for its charter, and has always manifested its disposition to comply faithfully with its obligations to the State.

By the recent Constitution the annual sum still to be paid by the company, $40,000 per year, has been dedicated to the support of one of the noblest charities in all the country, the Charity Hospital of New Orleans.

To pronounce such a corporation as this a fraud, does not comport with a very clear comprehension of the principles of common sense or official propriety.

SOME OF THE NEW GOODS EXHIBITED AT THE STORES OF JOHN LYNCH.

Housekeepers, both upon the east and west side, can be accommodated by this furniture dealer. On the west side the store is located at 308 8th av., near 25th st., and the east side, 386 3th av., corner 28th st.

There are some people who, through misplaced confidence, by purchasing of unprincipled dealers, denounce the whole installment system as a means of furnishing their homes. In some instances, perhaps in many, dealers are at fault, when purchasers are not able to funfil their promises and meet the payments at the time designated when the furniture was bargained for. But there are also many cases where the purchasers are at fault, and others where they are absolutely dishonest. In hundreds of cases payments are postponed from month to month until the dealers begin to think their customers will wear out the carpets and furniture and leave them to take it at last for their pay or get nothing.

Some of these delinquents doubtless are deterred from meeting the installments required by sickness, funeral takes the internal induced to part with all the huxuries and some of the necessities of life to procure bread enough to keep their families from starvation. But it is a positive fact that more people fail to meet the payments with ready money because they recklessly and wilfully squander their earninus at the infernal liquor dens, gaming tables and catchpenny shows, where men with red noses stand outside and tell you to "walk right in and see the wonderful snake charmer or the fattest woman on record."

An honorable dealer of this kind, like the one above mentioned, is always considerate and lement when he sees and feels satisfied that his customers are doing their best to liquidate the debt, even if they are unable to spare the amount they intended to pay each month, when the contract was made.

The stock contained in both these stores is entirely new, well made, and neatly, fashionably, and substantially finished. There is little if any difference made in the price to those who pay by installments and those who pay cash down when delivered.

One specialty in chamber furnishings is a fine stock of wardrobes of all sizes and qualities of wood, both hard and soft. A building five stories high and nearly 100 feet square flanked by another nearly as large, where all is bustle and activity, the first equipped with heavy and intricate machinery, driven by a 100-horse power engine; tons of India rubber and various medical ingredients, undergoing manipulation; experts watching the different proceases of manufacture. Judge of our surprise when told that this immense factory (located in South Brooklyn) was devoted to the preparation of Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster. We had never thought of this branch o business at all, and if we had, it would have been merely a passing idea of a little room with a few plasters for a few people troubled with back and other aches; but here, looking at the many busy women engaged from morning to night in boxing and labelling the plasters, to be made ready for the market every day, one is amazed at the enormous consumption of them there must be. "Where on earth can so many go!" we asked. "Everywhere. Come into our shipping department and our tatement will be verified;" and it was, for the book about that were given for the healing of the nations, to he sent into every part where there was pain.—Brooklyn is due to the fact that it is a decided improvement on the ordinary perous plaster, which has been known and used for thirty years. It possesses greater and more powerful pain relieving and curative properties, and is more prompt and positive in its action. Any physician will confirm the statement regarding its superiority over all similar articles. There is no other means whereby re-lief can be obtained in such cases as lame back, kidney and spinal complaints, rheumatism, stubbern coughs, whooping cough, and all local aches and pains with so much convenience, quickness, and certainty as by the use of Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster.
